- Cumin Prices Ease Slightly due to Limited Arrivals and Uncertainty Over Upcoming Sowing Season: Cumin prices in the domestic spot market eased slightly after an earlier rise, despite continued strength in futures trading. Uncertainty over weather conditions and temperature patterns ahead of the October–November sowing period for the upcoming rabi season in Gujarat and Rajasthan has kept market sentiment uncertain, contributing to speculative activity and a sustained rise in futures prices. Arrivals remain limited across major domestic mandis, including Unjha, while farmers and traders continue to hold stocks in anticipation of further price increases, despite recent improvements in market prices. Cumin prices are expected to remain firm, with the possibility of further gains in the coming days.
